The Watershed Project is located at the University of California's Richmond Field Station (RFS). Once you arrive at the RFS (see directions under the map), stop at the guard station — if the guard is there, he will give you a map. If not, follow the main road for about 150 yards and make a left onto Egret Way.

To get to the Watershed Project's office:
Continue to the stop sign, and turn right onto Lark. The Watershed Project is located in the third building on the right (#155), park in the lot in front.

To get to the Watershed Project Native Plant Nursery:
Continue along Egret Way, take left just before iron gate (Gate #2). Follow road to end.

On weekends

The main gate is closed on weekends, so turn left from the main gate and follow the side road to Gate #2. There will be someone there to let you in or the gate will be open.

To get to the Watershed Project's office:
Go through Gate #2, and turn left onto Egret Way. Continue to the stop sign, and turn right onto Lark. The Watershed Project is located in the third building on the right (#155), park in the lot in front.

To get to the Watershed Project Native Plant Nursery:
Go through Gate #2, and turn right onto Egret Way. Make your first right. Follow this road to end.

DIRECTIONS TO THE WATERSHED PROJECT

From Berkeley or San Rafael

Then take an immediate right into the Richmond Field Station. If you reach the freeway entrance, you've gone too far.

From Sacramento

From Marin County

Take I-580E toward Berkeley. Exit at Bayview Avenue. Turn right at the stop sign. Go to ** to left.
